Jean M. Turner and Edwin M. Deu Vaul Both Abandoned by Their "Better" Halves.

It is alleged that plaintiff and defendant were married in this city on Jan. 13, 1903, and have one child, of which plaintiff asks the custody. Mrs. Turner charges that her husband has not supported her at all since their marriage, and that he deserted her on April 1, 1904, and since that time has contributed only $5 to her support. She says that the last she heard of him he was in Colorado and was living under an assumed name. She asks that her maiden name, Jean M. Dickman, be restored to her.

SUPREME COURT.

Opinions in Timmony Poll Tax and O. S. L. Cases.

According to an opinion rendered by the supreme court today Salt Lake City will have to pay to Arvilla Timmony, administratrix of the estate of Arvilla Timmony, deceased, the amount of the judgment rendered in her favor in the district court, namely, $1,294 and costs. The action was brought in the court below to recover the above amount for fees due Mr. Timmony for poll tax cases tried by him for the city while he was city justice of the peace between Oct. 5, 1898, and Nov. 11, 1903.

There were over 500 poll tax cases filed in his court by the city during that time, but the city refused to pay the filing fees on the ground that it was part of his duty as city justice and that he was paid a salary of $1,000 per annum to handle the city's business. Judgment was rendered against the city and an appeal was taken to the supreme court.

In the opinion of the court, written by Chief Justice Baskin and concurred in by Justices Bartch and McCarthy, it is held that an action to recover poll tax is an action in debt as provided by statute over which other justices of the peace have jurisdiction and not within the exclusive jurisdiction of the city justice, and hence a city justice is entitled to collect such fees for them as is provided in the statutes. The judgment is affirmed with costs.

The supreme court handed down an opinion today affirming the judgment of the lower court in the case of the Oregon Short Line Railroad company, appellant, against M. J. Fox, trustee, and F. M. Hayden. The action was brought to condemn a right of way across defendants' land for a railroad track and judgment of condemnation was made in the court below and the assessed value of the land was $2,200 and the damages to Hayden's leasehold interest at $1,049.24, from this judgment an appeal was taken.

It was contended by the railroad company that the property was a part of way across the southern part of defendant's land, and that it abandoned that right of way and asked to condemn another right of way across the northern part of the land about a mile distant from the first right of way. By abandoning such right of way it claimed that no damage was done by simply changing the right of way to the other end of the land and it should only have been liable for the value of the land taken. It further claimed that the abandonment of the first tract of land was a benefit, and that the company should have received credit for such benefit in considering the question of damages.

The opinion of the supreme court, written by Justice McCarthy and concurred in by Chief Justice Baskin and Justice Bartch, holds that the abandonment of the original right of way could have been no benefit to the land sought to be condemned in this action, and that there was no benefit to the part of appellant to abandon its first right. Hence the judgment of the lower court is affirmed.

HOLIDAY SHOP THIEF.

He is Making His Calls and Visits the Deseret News Book Store.

The holiday shop thief has started in his work, and merchants up and down the street are warned that their floor walkers should give a sharp eye to strangers from now on. Several reports of small thefts have reached the "News," and one of them occurred in the "News" Book Store last night. A fine volume of a standard novel, bound in crumpled paper, was taken from a box on the shelf while a clerk's back was turned and the empty box left. The book was valued at $3.50, and the purchaser certainly showed that he had good taste, as it was a style of binding and printing entirely new to this market.

CRACKED SIDEWALKS.

Board of Public Works Meets to Consider Defective Contract Work.

The board of public works held a special meeting this morning to consider the matter of passing the estimates for Blome & Co., due on sidewalks constructed by them. There have been a number of complaints received by the board in regard to the work done by the contractors as in some instances the walks have cracked. After some discussion it was decided to withhold the final estimate on all the sidewalk extensions until any defects in the work can be remedied by the contractors. It was thought that the city would be safe in doing that as the final estimate will be more than enough to pay for any repairs which may be necessary. An estimate will be made by the city engineer's office of the cost of remedying all the defects and if the final estimate is not sufficient to cover it then the board will withhold more than the amount due under such estimate.

CRIME IN OGDEN.

Successful Burglaries and an Attempted Holdup Are Reported to Police.

(Special to the "News.") Ogden, Dec. 8.—The Ogden steam laundry was entered by burglars at an early hour this morning, access being gained by means of a skeleton key and the front door. The robbers found the safe unlocked and accordingly helped themselves to the contents including $30 in cash and a check for $5 signed by John Koski. The police are working on the case.

D. M. Fisher of Syracuse reported to the police this morning that his hired man while returning from Ogden with a hay rack had a lively encounter with a couple of would-be hold-ups. The man had delivered a load of hay and was driving out of Ogden when two men accosted him and asked him for a ride. They rode with him as far as Riverdale when they attempted to rob him. The man refused to hold up his hands and a struggle commenced which ended with both men falling on the rack. One of the fellows fired at the man twice but missed. In the meantime the team ran away and the would-be victim escaped.

R. E. Welch was arrested this morning by Detective Pender. He is accused of entering the hut of China Charley and stealing a watch which he subsequently pawned in a local pawnbroker's shop. Both the China Charley and the broker positively identify him. He will in all probability be charged with housebreaking and larceny.

HEAP BIG TALK BY CHIEF WARD.

Lonely Uncompanioned Indian Tells How He Secured a Bottle Of Whiskey.

JOHN GARDNER IS ON TRIAL.

Indian Braves Are Tired and Broke And Want to Go Back to White Rock Agency.

Big Chief Ward, a lonely Uncompanioned Indian made a "heap big talk" before Judge Marshall in the United States court this morning. He was the leading witness in the case of the United States against John Gardner, and his story of an adventure with a bottle of whiskey which he obtained from Gardner is what the prosecution depends on to secure a conviction. The case came up for trial this morning and will not be concluded until late this afternoon. The leading line of defense attempted by the accused party is to prove that the selling of the liquor occurred more than two years before the making out of the indictment, and is therefore outlived.

Ward's legend of the all important bottle of whiskey is that one day he pitched his camp on the banks of the soft flowing Uintah river, and that he saw near his camp on the waterside another camp of a white man named Reynolds, and that in the evening he went over to this man's camp and there negotiated with him for a bottle of freewater, which the said Reynolds went to a saloon on the strip and procured for him.

Ward is the only Indian among the braves now held as witnesses in the three liquor-selling cases under consideration of the court. He is older than the others, and does not fraternize with them. After court adjourned today he stood sullen and alone in the marshal's office, while the young Ute braves gathered outside the door, laughing and joking with one another. Leaning on the desk he muttered things partly in English and partly in Indian. Among the broken sentences that could be overheard were "Too much days. Me no got money. All time bed house, go eat house, heap tired."

When asked how he enjoyed being a witness in court he replied through an interpreter that he knew nothing about that, except for the big judge, and would not talk about it to anyone else.

A peculiarity of Indians, according to the interpreter who is with the band of braves at the federal court, is that one will never interrupt another while he is speaking. This morning the interpreter waited a long time for Ward to finish his complaint about civilized life before asking him the question concerning his appearance in court.

The tickets on which the Indians came to Salt Lake were limited to 10 days, and they have expired. Deputy U. S. Marshal Smythe was busy this morning securing extensions until Saturday, when it is thought the Indians will be released to return home.

REGENTS MEET.

Executive Board of the State University in Session Today.

The regents of the state University met this afternoon, in the directors' room of the Deseret National bank. There were present W. W. Ritter, chairman; Anthony H. Lund, Mrs. Emma McVicker, Mrs. Rebecca Little, President T. T. Kingsbury, and Frank Pierce. The object of the meeting was to consider the report of a committee appointed to schedule the needs of the state University for the period between July 1, 1905, and June 30, 1907, and estimates for maintenance during that time. Just what the recommendations of the committee were, the regents declined to state in advance of submission of the same to the state auditor for reporting to the governor; but it is understood that what the regents will ask for include a gymnasium building, a girls' dormitory, and the abolition of the preparatory department.

President Kingsbury recommended that the athletic field be leveled off and graded, and the matter of advertising for bids and carrying out the proposal was referred to the building committee after the president's recommendation had been accepted.

Mrs. C. S. Kinney, Mrs. R. R. Hudson and Mrs. H. S. Young, representing the Federation of Women's clubs, appeared before the regents to ask if they could not be included in the building for funds, if the federation should ask the Legislature for an appropriation of $50,000 for a building to be erected for the girls' students in domestic science. It was the opinion of the regents that it would interfere with them in making their request; and then besides, it might stir up the Agricultural college board to imagining the scheme would encroach on the department in domestic science established at the A. C. So the matter is held in abeyance for the present.

CARNEGIE NEVER SIGNED THE NOTES.

has traveled around the world and dabbled in financial matters in this country. I never knew of her acquaintance with Carnegie or any other wealthy people of that stamp. I do know, however, that no money was advanced to her in at present she will surely get out of it, for she possesses more than sufficient money to make good any amount she may have borrowed on notes or loans.

"Not one of our family ever posed as a medium," declared Mrs. York. There was no necessity for such a move, for all of us have had money during our lives. When my husband was alive he was one of the most successful machine manufacturers in the state of Ohio. In 1897 he got interested in the Buffalo Radiator company. This concern ate up his money. When we went into it he was worth a quarter of a million dollars. When he died, exactly one year later, his estate owed more than $74,000. The loss of a fortune killed him."

Mrs. York has two daughters living with her at her Geary street home. When Atty. Carpenter returned from an unsuccessful search for a bondsman, Mrs. Chadwick was taken before Commissioner Shields. Men and women that were now here evidently came from all parts of the country. The crowd was so great in the corridors that it was impossible to pass and Mrs. Chadwick was taken through a series of offices directly into the court room. She was supported by the marshal and her maid, and walked slowly, almost tottering, but a few steps into the room, where she dropped into a chair, amid a hundred or more newspapermen. Mrs. Chadwick sat with her head bowed in her hands and did not once look up.

Asst. United States Dist. Atty. Baldwin formally presented the case before Commissioner Shields, saying that on his information and belief other complaints would probably be brought but this specific case was the only one he desired to bring at this time. He asked that a bond of $25,000 be fixed in the case. Atty. Carpenter asked that $10,000 be fixed, in view of the fact that the principals whom she is charged with aiding and abetting were held in that amount. The commissioner fixed the amount at $15,000, and the hearing was put over until Dec. 17. Mr. Carpenter agreed to that with the understanding that he have the privilege of another continuance at that time, should he not be prepared to go on with the case.

At the conclusion of the proceedings occurred one of the most sensational incidents in connection with the case. As Mrs. Chadwick was assisted to her feet by the marshal there was a stampede for the door, led by the 50 or more photographers who had been disappointed a quarter of an hour before when Mrs. Chadwick was on her way to the courtroom.

Shouts of "order," "this court is not adjourned" and "gentlemen, take seats or pass out" were unheeded; deputy marshals were summoned, but they were carried by the crowd out into the corridor only to face a battery of photographers.

Mrs. Chadwick passed into the corridor from the courtroom by another door. As this door opened and she stood on the threshold with Marshal Henkel, there was a blinding flash from a photographer's apparatus followed instantly by several others. The marshal was startled and Mrs. Chadwick collapsed, fell to her knees and was kept from falling prone on the floor only by the marshal and her son, who supported her at every step.
